recently destroyed Cotton Cloth Mills at Yangtzepoo were financed are to be gleaned be plucked. from the petition addressed by the Taotai of Tientsin to the Vicerov LI HUNG-CHANG in reference to the reconstruction of the factory. After stating that the cash and cloth saved from the burned mills will about suffice to pay sundry debts due, SHENG Taotai enters upon a lengthy consideration of what is to be done with the other propert left from the wreck, including the site of the mills, the house of the superintendent and stuff, the machinery, boilers, and odds an ends damaged by fire. The value of these, he observes, must be small. The remaining assets are evidently very trifling, but Suence s a shrewd man, and he therefore proposes that the Government should be generous with them. .. "According to immemorial "custom in China," he says, "if anything "fatal happens to a salt monopolist or "pawnbroking concern, the first thing to be ." done is to pay the Government deposits "before any other debt." In the case of the Yangizepoo Cotton Mills; however, the Government funds invested amount to Tis. 265,000 odd, and if all the assets left were applied to liquidation of the amount they would prove insufficient for the purpose-This being the case, and it being in the opinion of the astate Speng pretty, certain prior claim would tend to disgust private capitalists, he recommends that the result of the valuation of the mill property should be proportionately paid to the bolders of old shares alone, in the shape of new shares in the new mills. This is of course on the principle of throwing a sprat to catch a mackerel. Meantime effective provision for the repayment of the Government claim is to be made hy the collection of one tael on each bale of varu produced when the new mills running. "Chinese merchants," adds the "ful for this instance of special grace on the "part of the Viceroy, and no one in future " will have reason for complaint."

· Considering that the shareholders have for ten years, on Suenc's own admission, received no interest on their capital. would have been very hard if, when on the eve of success, they had, by the arbitrary action of the Government, been deprived of the smull remnants of the money they had invested. But it is difficult to see what cause for special gratitude is to be found in the Government deferring their claim in order to secure 'payment in full instead of unjustly seizing the balance of the assets, which after all would have meant present loss. From the rather confused statement of Sheng, it appears the capital of the Company consisted of Tis. 920,290, of which Tis. 265,390 was lout by Government, Tls. 554,900 subscribed by merchants and the gentry, Tls. 80,000 by the Jenho Chinese Insurance Company, and Tls. 20,000 deposited from the Shanghai Taotai's treasury. .This latter was paid out for machinery, the capital being presuriably exhausted. The manager, Yang, is also said to have further advanced Tis. 150,000, so that the total sum invested in this enterprise was over a million tacls. of getting back the money already sunk in formation." the undertaking, but it is doubtful whether new shareholders will be encouraged to come forward. Chinese capital is always shy, and official allurements are seldom strong enough to bring it out, unless backed by veiled commands. Chinese merchants would be ready enough to find capital for industrial enterprises if there was no danger of mandarin interference with them or the competitionof some official monopoly to be dreaded. As it is, they know that no private enterprise is likely to receive fuir play and they have no confidence in any undertaking in which the mandarins have a finger. There is no doubt a future for cotton cloth and yarn mills in the Far East, but if they flourish in China it will be in spite and not in consequence of official support. If the Chinese capitalists are really disposed to go in for Orient steamer leaving for the south has taken handsome and artistic designs, suitable to all this industry they will, we think, prefer as many Chinese as the regulations allowestablishing mills in Hongkong, where they from Hongkong, and, of the steamers would will le safe from the interference and mis-take more, there would be a great number management of the mandarins, and be able going. HIS HONOUR SIR FIRLDING CLARKE. CHIEF JUSTICE. A " PROPONTIS" CASE ..

This was a suit by the Bank of Liverpool, Ltd. against the proceeds of the sale of the steamer Mr. A. J. Leach, Q.C., instructed by Mr. E. C. Ellis (of Mr. V. H. Deacon's office), appeared

Mr. Leach suid-This is an action by the Bank of Liverpool, Ltd., incorporated under the Enghish Companies Acts, against the proceeds of the steamer Propontis. The plaintiffs are the mortgagees under a statutory form of morta sum of £8:329 68, 10d. to be paid out of the propeeds now remaining in Court of the steamer Propontie. The Propontie was not on June 28th, 1893, by an order of the Court several actions being instituted against her. She fetched a sum of about $40,000 and there now remains $20,739.24. The present proceedings are ex parte by leave of the Court, and leave has also been given to prove our case by affidavit. The affidavits were then put in and his Lord ship, after remarking that the sum in Court would not be anything like enough to satisfy the claim, gave judgment for the plaintiffs for the amount named
